TENTED FIELDS.

Gray and Grizzled G. A. R. Men

Meet at the National Encampment.

The Dedication Ceremonies of Grand Army Place.

An Eloquent and Touching Address of Welcome by Vice-President Morton.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—[Associated Press.] The twenty-sixth annual encampment of the G. A. R. is now in full swing. All night and all morning the veterans kept crowding into the capital city, and at noon estimates of those here vary all the way from a hundred thousand to a quarter of a million. The great mass is, of course, streaming to the G. A. R. lot, where a great mass of white canvas greets the eye, all splendidly divided off so that the regiments who fought together find themselves united as of old. Washington has certainly surpassed itself in the magnitude of its preparations. At the four quarters in Monument Square the throng is almost as great as at the various headquarters. It is here on "Grand Army place" that the formal opening of the encampment is to take place.

Today the membership of the 7,000 tents in the G. A. R. is fully half a million. But the Women's Relief Corps is also holding a great reunion and one of its most favored members today is Mrs. General John A. Logan, who will in all likelihood be chosen National President.

A great event of the encampment is the dedication of the Lafayette monument, the gift of Lafayette Park, New York, at which Chas. H. Dole, commander of the Massachusetts Post, General John P. Taylor, of Boston, and the present vice-commander-in-chief Henry M. Duffield.

For days old and grizzled comrades have been gathering from every part of the Union, until the attendance surpasses anything ever before seen here. All the hotels, and many of the private residences have been thrown open to them and are crowded with the men who defended the capital against invasion in the dark days. Every available resource has been drawn on and in spite of the regular army and navy is being called for. The decorations of the city are elaborate and tasteful throughout, especially on Pennsylvania avenue, from the capitol building to Twenty-second street.

The dedication of Grand Army place was preceded by a parade of the members of the regular army, naval batteries and marines, the district National Guard post, department of the Potomac G. A. R., and Sons of Veterans. At the treasury building in the morning the Vice-President Morton was reviewed by the President Harrison, who deeply regretted his inability to be present. After the parade Vice-President Morton was escorted to Grand Army place and received with a salute from the guns of the Kennebec. The speaker delivered the introductory address.

Vice-President Morton delivered the formal dedication address. The speaker began by referring with sympathetic terms to the domestic reasons which caused the absence of President Harrison. Turning to the matters in hand the speaker continued: "I see before me survivors of a generation of men who have emblazoned the pages of history and freedom for all time to come; who have set an example for republican France, for united Germany, for reconstructed Italy and who have broadened and deepened the history of the English constitution and of Anglo-Saxon liberty. Of this great army of liberty whether they have passed away or are still present for duty, you are honored representatives. The president would speak to you as a comrade. It is our duty to give you the best of our business interests affecting the welfare of the whole people in behalf of trade and commerce and husbandman and artisan, employer and employed, in behalf of all men and women from every section who love union and I bid you welcome in behalf of the present and the future of this country."

The speaker then turned to the business interests affecting the welfare of the whole people in behalf of trade and commerce and husbandman and artisan, employer and employed, in behalf of all men and women from every section who love union and I bid you welcome in behalf of the present and the future of this country. The speaker then turned to the business interests affecting the welfare of the whole people in behalf of trade and commerce and husbandman and artisan, employer and employed, in behalf of all men and women from every section who love union and I bid you welcome in behalf of the present and the future of this country.

And now my countrymen in behalf of the whole American people, I dedicate this Grand Army place and commemorative memorials which it is believed is to be hereafter erected as a monument to the everlasting glory of the Grand Army of the Republic. God bless you all and those who today unite with you in strengthening the union of the great republic."

There were very brief informal speeches by Secretary Noble, Attorney-General Miller, Acting Secretary of War General Schaffel and General J. W. Keifer.

The fight for the honor of entertaining the Grand Army a year hence has begun. Indianapolis is first in the field and pushing her case vigorously, but Lincoln, Neb., has begun to urge its claims. Thus far there are only two places suggested.

SIR EDWIN FEELS INJURED.

He Denies the Story of His Gay Life in Japan.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—[Associated Press.] A contemptuous smile overspread the face of Sir Edwin Arnold when he read the Chicago dispatch published today reporting that Rev. Mr. Bartlett, a young missionary sent to Japan by the American Board of Missions, had told at a meeting of Congregational ministers in Chicago Monday that the dislike of the Japanese to missionaries was aroused by the "conduct of travelers like Sir Edwin Arnold, whose conduct while in Japan, if enlarged upon, would certainly not be tolerated in America. It might pass in the gay courts of European Kings and Princes and would be particularly suitable to the court of Louis XIV."

Sir Edwin said: "I know the missionaries and have done them service in the past. I know Mr. Bartlett, and nobody else would say such a thing. I will not reply to such allegations. They are simply calumnies unworthy of serious attention. I respect the Christian missionaries in Japan and understand the difficulties in their work. The Japanese are too metaphysical and philosophical to accept the Christian dogmas they teach, but the missionaries accomplish much good in teaching the Japanese to read and write and in their Christian conduct. They go there, especially, to make an impression that is improving the Japanese women. That is all I have to say."

LOSING FRIENDS.

Sentiment Turning Against Evans and Sontag.

Those who befriended them as Train Robbers are Denouncing them as Murderers.

VISALIA, Cal., Sept. 19.—[Associated Press.] One posse in pursuit of Evans and Sontag was heard from today. They claim to have run the desperado out of Sampson Flats and to Pine Ridge. It is thought Evans and Sontag are making for Redwood canyon, an almost impenetrable gorge.

Clark More, a mining partner of Evans, who is under arrest, will probably not be taken to Fresno yet and he given a chance of habeas corpus as he can be better used in the hills with the posse. Sheriff Kays and posse arrived at Sequoia Mills last night and started on the trail this morning. A man just from the mountains says there is a change of sentiment regarding the outlaws since the killing of Wilson and McGinnis, and a number of men who would have befriended them before now say they will do what they can to deliver them over to the officers.

NOT THE SAME PAPER.

Publishers of the Detroit Sun Object to a Chicago Namesake.

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—[Associated Press.] The Sun Association of Detroit, publishers of the Illustrated Sun, a Detroit weekly, brought suit in the United States court yesterday to enjoin the publication of a weekly paper of the same name in this city. It is alleged that David Price Mackay, the publisher of the rival Chicago paper, was once manager and president of the complainant corporation, but he was "compelled to dispose of his interest in the company and has since had no interest whatever in it. It is claimed that he has allowed the impression to go forth that the Sun, published here, is the same paper printed in Detroit. His methods, it is alleged, have resulted in a loss of $10,000 to complainant, and an injunction restraining Mackay from conducting the paper in whatever form is sought.

SPEED OF A COLORED PARSON.

He Holds a Church in Oklahoma in Five Days.

GUTHRIE, O. T., Sept. 19.—[Associated Press.] Oklahoma people are noted the world over for their ability to rush things, but it remained for a colored preacher from Memphis, Tenn., to show the people what real, genuine rushing is. A week ago yesterday Rev. William F. Morgan, a colored Baptist minister, arrived here from Memphis. Before night the next day he had purchased ground and began the erection of a church. Sunday, just five days later, he held services in the church, a neat frame structure with comfortable seats for 400 people, all finished and paid for. Today he returned to Memphis to complete arrangements for the removal of his congregation to this city. All members are to come in a body as a colony.

Knocked Out for Good.

WINDSOR, Ariz., Sept. 19.—During a drunken row this morning at Holbrook Ben Mitchell killed Tom Nance by a blow with his fist. Mitchell, who is the same man whose skull was fractured in a fight here a month ago, has fled. Both men were cow boys. Nance's neck was broken and death was instantaneous.

Board of Supervisors.

The board of supervisors was in session yesterday. Election precincts were established to include the territorial boundaries of school districts No. 27, 30 and 34.

The duplicate tax roll was received from the transcribers and turned over to the tax collector. Bonds to the amount of $2,000 were ordered issued for school district No. 10.

Sixty-Fifth Gathering in Session.

Portland Overrun with Visitors.

The Grand Parade the Chief Feature of Yesterday.

Reports Show the Order to Have Increased in Numbers and Business Beyond Precedent.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 19.—[Associated Press.] The sixty-fifth annual gathering of the Odd Fellows of the country has attracted from fifty to a hundred thousand visitors this city. The convales which opened today will last one week. The ceremonies began with the reception of officers and prominent guests at the opera house.

The addresses of welcome were made by the mayor of Portland and Governor Penney, who is here with his entire staff. "Grand old Buby responded, Deputy Grand Sir C. T. Campbell, of London, Ont., and Lieutenant General J. C. Underwood, who is in charge of the military forces of the order, also spoke. J. K. Powers, of Cedar Rapids, who is chairman of the transportation committee, estimated the attendance of Odd Fellows alone at thirty thousand. This is exclusive of the great crowds attracted by the festivities. The city is finely decorated. Odd Fellow emblems are being displayed everywhere. During the week there will be a splendid program of dramatics, competitive drills, parades and receptions.

The feature of today's ceremonies was the grand parade. About five thousand Odd Fellows were in line which was viewed by at least 40,000 people. Tomorrow at the election of officers which occur Grand Sir Charles M. Hubbs, according to precedent, will be succeeded by Deputy Grand Sir S. T. Campbell, of London, Ontario. The names most prominently mentioned for deputy grand sir are Dr. Wm. H. Isard, of New Jersey, and J. W. Stebbins, of New York.

The report of Grand Sir Bushy to be submitted to the Sovereign Grand Lodge this week will show the largest gain in membership for the past year ever made in one year during the order's history. The net increase was 48,807. The membership in good standing, including those of the degree, is 862,881. The expenditures for relief were $3,176,382. The income for the year was $7,950,064, an increase of $220,138.

TIRE OF MARRIED LIFE.

A Mother and Son Apply for Separation from their Partners.

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—[Associated Press.] For two members of one family to apply for legal separation at the same time is a novelty in the divorce business. Mrs. Catherine Dethloff alleges in her bill that she was married to Charles F. Dethloff at Laporte, Ind., in 1857. They have nine children, one of them being Leopold J., aged 27 years. Dethloff is a musician and earns $2,000 a year, besides having property worth $3,500. He is charged with cruelty. The other suit is brought by the son, Leopold J., in which he says he was married to his wife, Tillie, June 27, 1887, at Milwaukee, Wis. In April, 1890, he avers, she left him without cause. These are the complaints of the mother and son for divorces.

PUT ARSENIC IN ICE CREAM.

Louisville Officers Arrest a Disreputable Woman for Murder.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 19.—[Associated Press.] A sensation was created in the city yesterday by the arrest of Vincent Spaninger, a well known produce merchant, and Mrs. Josephine Cole, who is said to be his mistress, charged with poisoning Mrs. Eugene Sherill and Mrs. Emma Anstett, who were found dead in an assignment house kept by the latter woman last night. They were poisoned by arsenic administered in ice cream. Mrs. Sherill had gone to the house and spent the night with a man during the absence of her husband from the city. Spaninger was released of $5,000 bail tonight, but Mrs. Cole was held. The impression prevails that she is guilty of the poisoning.

Just Looking Around.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19.—C. P. Huntington and party arrived here from the east this afternoon. He stated there was no special significance attached to his visit. Mr. Huntington will occupy the Colton house during his stay here.

A Defective Gas Fixture.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19.—Joseph Linskey, one of the oldest policemen in the city was found dead in his room this morning having been asphyxiated by gas from a defective gas fixture. Mrs. Linskey and son had a narrow escape from death.

A MIXED CROP.

Out of Which was Harvested a Damage Suit.

The damage suit of Mangel Contreras against Jas. P. Evans for $300 was tried yesterday before Justice Huson. The plaintiff was a tenant of defendant's in the Buckeye district. He had a patch of ground on which he was raising poultry for himself and the defendant a mixed lot of barley, watermelons, roasting ears, onions and sweet potatoes.

This combination of cereals and vegetables would probably have got along all right but for an attempt to cultivate hogs within the same enclosure. About all that ever came to maturity was the law suit—and perhaps the hogs.

The plaintiff, in his oral bill of particulars, mentions the loss of 2,000 watermelons of the fancy price of 25 cents each, half the entire stock of corn and about 60 sacks of unsucked barley. The defendant denied the extent of the devastation. He thought probably twenty-five or thirty melons had been destroyed. A patch of corn about thirty feet wide and half a quarter long had been invaded and decimated. The barley didn't belong to the plaintiff, whom he represented to be a free-and-easy sort of a tenant accustomed to take things and other articles for granted. The case is under advisement.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

A. J. Ricord, of Detroit, is stopping at the Commercial hotel.

Contractor Tooley of the Wolfley canal, was in the city yesterday.

Mr. E. Ganz and family returned last Sunday from a visit to California.

Mr. W. F. McNulty and family got in last Saturday night from a Castle Creek outing.

Articles of incorporation were yesterday filed by Liggett, Dodge & Co., with a capital of $10,000.

There were registered at the Mills yesterday W. Thompson, San Francisco, and A. J. and Clark Stretler, of New Windsor, Ill.

Among the Phoenix people who are returning from abroad were Messrs. C. F. Ainsworth and C. S. Maeten and family yesterday morning.

This afternoon the case of Jacob Kessler charged with selling liquor to Indians will be brought up before Commissioner Early this afternoon.

A half dozen cases made up of drunks, reckless drivers and users of obscene and improper language made up Judge Schwartz' docket yesterday morning.

Prof. F. Gitzler, the aeronaut, and E. K. Kane, Mrs. Willard and Mrs. Onzola and child, all from San Francisco, are stopping at the Commercial.

Brightening Up.

QUARANTINE, N. Y., Sept. 19.—Dr. Byron at Swineburne Island this afternoon telegraphed Dr. Jenkins that two dead bodies had been taken from the Scandia and one new patient from the Bohemia, but that with this exception all the patients are out of danger and the island will soon be free from cholera patients.

SHE RECOILED, BUT DIDN'T KICK.

Heroic Conduct of a Tall, Graceful Girl at the Supreme Test of Love.

Two tall, graceful girls strolled slowly along the beach earnestly conversing. They were conspicuous in the throng, and many an admiring glance was turned toward them as they sauntered to and fro. A cloudless sky was reflected in calm waters below, while scarcely a breath of air was stirring.

The girl in the pure white blazer was doing most of the talking. "It is all very well," she was saying, "to insist that you would die for the man you love, but the sacrifice is quite another thing."

The girl with the blue yachting cap shrugged her shoulders. "You speak," she observed, "like one who had made the sacrifice."

"I have the right to do so," she said. "Affecting recollections poured tumultuously over the soul of the girl in the white blazer. Her lips trembled and the superb eyes bent upon the sand of the beach glistened with the dew of gathering tears.

The girl in the blue cap smiled haughtily. "Indeed," she sarcastically retorted, "how very interesting! And how does it feel to actually die for the man you love?"

Approachingly the girl in the white blazer directed her gaze upon the girl with the blue yachting cap. "You shall not make light of it," she said.

"Forgive me," she said. "For a time they walked in silence. Both were deeply affected, the one filled with remembrances of the past; the other her resentment gone, with womanly sympathy.

"Tell me about it, Ethel," she said. "The girl in the blue yachting cap was tenderly persuasive.

"It was worse than dying for him, Clara."

With a quick movement the tears were dashed from the superb eyes, and the girl with the white blazer faced her companion.

"It was at Easter, Clara. You remember the dear, bright fellow I was engaged to then. One evening but a short while before he said he did not believe I loved him the deep love I should. I challenged him to name a sacrifice I would not make for his sake. With an insight into feminine character which was Mephistophelian in its subtlety, he dared me to do that which causes every woman's heart to recoil with horror. But I did it."

They had paused in their walk, and were looking at each other fixedly.

"Ethel!"

"Yes, Clara, I did it. I went to church that Easter morning, sat in the very front seat, and I never looked away during the service."

The girl in the blue yachting cap drew a deep, tremulous breath.

"Ethel!"

"Yes, Clara."

"You are a sublime heroine. Can you forget my hasty words?"

"I can, Clara."

"And the little wavelets lapped the snowy beach with drowsy sound, while all the throng gazed in admiration at the graceful girls.—Detroit Tribune.

A Mean Man.

A very wide known clergyman in a town near New York had the misfortune to lose his wife while the invalid was absent on a vain quest for health. His grief did not cloud his intellect. He went to the local railroad office and endeavored to persuade the agent to send his wife's body back to the city on her return excursion ticket.—Boston Saturday Gazette.

The All Absorbing Question.

"Ta-ra-ra, Boom-de-ay" is said to have originated with the howling derbies. A long suffering public, however, is not so much interested in knowing just where "Ta-ra-ra, Boom-de-ay" began as it is in knowing just where it is going to stop.—Boston Globe.

FATAL NEGLECT.

The Unsanitary Condition of the City.

Made the Theme of an Earnest Pulpit Talk.

A Grisly Visitor May Travel in This Direction.

The Maricopa Medical Association Will Consider the Probability Next Saturday.

Rev. Mr. McKinney, of the Presbyterian church, preached a practical sermon last Sunday morning. All sermons are practical, but this one is peculiarly so as it related to a theme which just now is creating more widespread and intense attention than the doctrine of the second birth. It related entirely to sublimity affairs and man's duty to himself and the community and the duty of communities and municipalities to their members.

He dwelt at length, and particularly upon the sanitary condition of Phoenix, which is, as everyone knows, notoriously bad.

The reverend speaker spoke of the alubrious climate which Phoenix people enjoy and than which none more healthful. Yet this pure and health giving atmosphere, said the speaker, may be overlaid so as to become poisonous and death dealing.

The city guides itself in the matter of sanitation by the experience of the past.

Just now all well regulated towns are vying with each other in cleaning up preparing to receive a grim and awful visitor whose dread form has already reared itself on city-climate shores.

A calm confidence that the bacilli cannot exist in this climate seems to have taken possession of the city authorities. It is true that under ordinary conditions the atmosphere is dry for the propagation of germ disease, but the conditions which prevail are not ordinary.

The air is almost humid with reeking filth and it is a matter of surprise that Phoenix has not become the starting point of some deadly contagion.

Mr. McKinney, the prophet of the establishment of a thorough sanitary system. A daily inspection by a properly qualified officer and the daily removal of all accumulated garbage.

This subject was interwoven with scriptural allusion and was given the place assigned it by the apostolic declaration that cleanliness is next to Godliness.

The personal cleanliness of any man is a matter which affects only himself or those of his neighbors with whom he comes into direct contact.

The Christian life of any man is also a matter which affects only himself, or perhaps also those who come under his influence. A Christian city or a Christian community makes its benign influence felt among all its numbers, even though some of them are not Christians.

A cleanly city is a blessing to all who live within its borders. What must then be the effect of an uncleanly city?

The Republican has frequently alluded to the sanitary condition of Phoenix. The utter neglect of all healthful precautions cannot be overdrawn. There is probably in no other city in the United States or any civilized country such a complete and thorough disregard of the most ordinary and natural sanitary rules.

There are sections of the town, notably between Moore and Van Buren streets, east of Montezuma, where beds of reeking filth, cess-pools which might nearly be said to be open sewers, and a mass of every imaginable sort of refuse matter hardly affected by even the disintegrating influence of an Arizona sun.

This conversion of the entire city into a dry closet system is bound to end in disaster some of these days.

The sewer system now in course of construction will, of course, afford great, but perhaps, not sufficient relief. It will likely be a long time before it is carried to the outlying districts.

It is the duty of the city authorities to take some action at once. The cholera may not reach Phoenix at all, but then it may be here within two months. It has now established itself on the continent. It has carried and passed beyond the secret stronghold, the New York quarantine and it is idle and foolish to suppose that it may not spread rapidly west and south.

There is, it is true, no place it is so unlikely to reach as Arizona, but should it come there it is place on the face of the earth so badly prepared to receive it as Phoenix.

Next Saturday there will be a meeting of the Maricopa County Medical association at Hughes & Dameron's office.

The object of this meeting will be to discuss the most important that ever called that body together. It is to consider ways and means for combating the Asiatic fever in case of its approach in this direction. Sanitary matters will be thoroughly discussed and such steps will be urged as may be necessary to leave the disease the slightest foothold.

There is a difference of opinion among physicians as to whether the climate here would be favorable to the spread of the disease.

Arizona or this part of the territory has been remarkably free from contagious or infectious diseases. It is remembered though that the home of the disease in India and along the Mediterranean is quite similar as to climate and absence of humidity to southern Arizona.

The physicians say though that there is no place in the Union which can be so thoroughly and quickly quarantined as Phoenix. The danger is considered very remote but the association will insist that no chances be taken.

Bound Over.

Col. C. H. Gray, charged with making a demonstration with a knife against G. S. Johnston, who eloped with his niece, was given a hearing before Justice Huson yesterday morning. Col. Gray was bound over under a bond of $500.

Disaster Bacilli.

The Tempe News rattles the deliberations of the late Democratic convention as follows:

The Democratic convention of Maricopa county for 1892 is a thing of the past. It still remains to be seen how, however, the deliberations of that body will meet the approval of its master—the people. It still remains to be proven whether it was wisdom, not to mention justice, to entirely ignore the claims of one of the largest tax paying precincts in the county. A district which certainly deserves some recognition at the hands of the party which expects so much from it on election day. The News sincerely regrets that the convention saw fit to adopt the methods of that body two years ago, thus again inviting the disastrous results which followed.

CHURCH ORGANIZATION.

A Congregation of Cumberland Presbyterians Formed.

A church of the Cumberland Presbyterian denomination was organized in this city by Rev. Barkley last Sunday morning, in the rooms occupied by Professor Lamson as a business college in the Sherman block on Washington street. There was a large audience present to hear Rev. Barkley's address on the history of that church. There were twelve applicants for admission, among whom were a number of ladies.

After the organizing ceremonies the members proceeded to elect ruling elders, which resulted in the selection of Messrs. Eitter, Mosery and Fitch. This new church starts off under good auspices and will doubtless grow rapidly as the material of which it is composed is among the best in the city and country.

Mr. W. T. Cummings and wife of Tempe were among the members that now constitute the body of that church and Mr. Cummings will probably be elected deacon next Sunday morning, when services will be held a Sabbath school organized to which all are cordially invited.

Measures were taken for a convention at an early day to put another Democratic ticket in the field. The slate already made up through the reformers refuse to make it public just now.

They say, however, that the regular ticket has not been entirely ignored. The nominees on that ticket less closely identified with the party are to be endorsed. It is said that Hon. A. C. Baker was slated for the council but that he has refused to accept the nomination on the reform ticket.

The matter would be arranged apace but under the Australian ballot system certain formalities are to be complied with which necessitate delay.

The gentlemen at the head of this movement do not look upon themselves as bolters. What they are about to do, they are doing for the ultimate good of the party. They are actuated, they say, by no personal or revengeful feelings. They want nothing at the hands of the late convention, either for themselves or their friends, and all they have lost is lost in common by all Democrats who are interested only in the good of the party.

These men are all Phoenix Democrats. The dissatisfaction of the Tempe contingent is still increasing and Editor Miller's utterance in the News last Saturday morning is considered of greater significance than the words imply. The article appears to be only deprecatory, but those on the inside say that because the liberal party is so strong in old type. It is construed to express the unbecoming opinion of a very large majority of Tempe Democrats.

There seems to be little doubt that this element urged by sectional and personal reasons will join the reformers in the coming year, rubbing the regular ring which will have a whole-some party effect.

When asked what they thought of the result of the Republican convention they said they had nothing to say; that wasn't their funeral and they had enough trouble at home without meddling with the affairs of their neighbors.

Col. Sturgis's Marriage.

Col. W. S. Sturgis was married last Saturday to Mrs. Roth of Tucson. The marriage ceremony was performed at the residence of Mr. W. S. Reid by Judge S. J. Wood.

The bride was accompanied by a host of friends throughout the territory join in sincere congratulations.

Relented too Late.

Last Saturday night John Buto assaulted and beat a Chinaman who had him arrested and locked up. Yesterday morning he was released and tried to withdraw the complaint but succeeded only in getting Buto off with a light fine and costs amounting to $8.25.

To the Voters of Maricopa County.

Having been informed of the action of the Republican convention in placing my name on the ticket as candidate for county surveyor, I take this early opportunity of thanking them; but at the same time to decline the honors thrust upon me. Before the meeting of the convention I was requested to decline my name to be used; but declined, giving my reasons therefore, that my present business was such as to prevent me attending to the business of the office if elected. As my name was used without my knowledge, and against my wishes, and my reasons for declining will hold good, I must positively refuse to allow it to be used in that connection.

Very Respectfully,
H. F. ROBINSON.
